

Methodology

This poll of 600 likely general election voters in Florida was conducted between July 31 and August 1, 2010.

All interviews were conducted via telephone by professional interviewers. Interview selection was random within predetermined election units. These units were structured to correlate with actual voter turnout in a general election.

The poll of 600 likely general election voters has an accuracy of +/- 4.0% at a 95% confidence interval.

When a union wants to organize in a workplace, they must obtain approval from a majority of the workers. Under the current process, workers generally vote in a federally supervised private ballot election where a majority vote is needed to organize a union. There is a bill in Congress called the Employee Free Choice Act, also known as Card Check, which would effectively replace a federally supervised private ballot election with a card check process that requires a majority of workers to simply sign a card to authorize organizing a union and the workers' signatures would be made public to their employer, the union organizers and their co-workers. Do you favor or oppose Congress passing this legislation?
